

Types of travel:

Fixed location: in order to know better a place is important to stop in the same place for some days.

Every morning we will do a new itinerary that will let us discover some new parts of the marvellous surrounding environment, and every evening we will return to our location. You will not have to bother to pack your luggage every time.

We will have some spare time to know better the surroundings and there will be unexpected surprises!

Itinerant location: What is travelling without the pleasure of discovering? Watching the landscape that change around us is a unique experience.

Every day there will be a new location, a new destination to reach, a new exciting challenge.